

AI Dreams, Browser Wars, and the Art of Breaking Up with Kimmy

08-07-2026

Duration: 57.5 min

Total Words: 8053

WPM: 135.6

Confidence: 91.2%

SUMMARY

Masterclass in AI industry analysis, comparing browser wars to the AI battles.

Vocabulary

Total items: 20

disillusioned

adj · Frequency: BEYOND 60K

Disappointed by unmet expectations.

credibility

n · Frequency: 5925

Trustworthiness others can believe.

monopolize

v · Frequency: 15172

Control whole market alone.

competitors

n · Frequency: 3733

Companies chasing same customers.

economization

n · Frequency: BEYOND 60K

Cutting costs to save.

entrepreneur

n · Frequency: 8692

Person starting own business.

dashboard

n · Frequency: 11900

Screen showing key data.

indicators

n · Frequency: 6045

Signs showing performance clearly.

deliveries

n · Frequency: 3086

Results produced for others.

guardrails

n · Frequency: BEYOND 60K

Limits preventing bad outcomes.

harness

n · Frequency: 10084

System controlling AI model.

hardcoded

adj · Frequency: BEYOND 60K

Fixed inside system permanently.

reproducible

paranoia

adj · Frequency: 13305

Repeatable with same result.

n · Frequency: 8530

Intense worry about threats.

phenomenon

n · Frequency: 4298

Interesting and unusual event.

tirade

n · Frequency: 16367

Long angry complaint speech.

fraud

n · Frequency: 4841

Dishonest trick or lie.

rationale

n · Frequency: 8692

Reasons behind a decision.

castrated

v · Frequency: 36940

Power removed, weakened metaphorically.

default

v · Frequency: 2000

Return to standard option.

Total items: 8

break up

pull the rug out from under

Latinate: separate · Usage: 85% / 15%

Casual/Standard. Natural choice for ending relationships or subscriptions. Not for broken machines.

Latinate: withdraw support · Usage: 70% / 30%

Casual/Standard. Support removed without warning. Causes sudden unexpected failure.

set up

Latinate: configure · Usage: 80% / 20%

Casual/Standard. Prepares systems for use. Natural in tech talk.

suck up

Latinate: consume · Usage: 75% / 25%

Casual. Absorbs context very greedily. Avoid in formal reports.

scratch the surface

Latinate: begin to understand · Usage: 80% / 20%

Standard. Only beginning to understand. Much remains hidden underneath.

squeeze out

Latinate: extract · Usage: 65% / 35%

Casual. Extracts value with effort. Gets the last drops.

burn through

Latinate: expend rapidly · Usage: 70% / 30%

Casual/Standard. Consumes tokens very fast. Common in tech talk.

plug in

Latinate: connect · Usage: 75% / 25%

Casual/Standard. Components connected and operational. Physical connection image.

comfort food

Familiar and comforting content. Emotional ease over challenge.

market share

Percentage of controlled sales. Standard business analysis term.

game changer

Completely changes the situation. Often sarcastic about hype.

side work

Work beside main job. Prefer saying side job.

first shot

Success on first attempt. Natural spoken casual praise.

big failure

Significant unsuccessful final result. Strong, clear negative judgment.

close eyes

Unnatural literal Spanish translation. Use believe blindly instead.

fillable

Editable PDF form file. Tech and design vocabulary.

Comparative structure with 'quarter of'

The correct form is 'a quarter of the cost' or 'a quarter of what the Americans spend.' The comparative word 'than' goes with 'less' or 'more,' not with 'of.'

ALT 'a quarter of the cost' or 'a quarter of what the Americans spend'

EX They can do it for a quarter of the cost.

EX They spend a quarter of what we spend.

TRAP Don't combine 'of' with 'than.' 'Quarter of money than' mixes two patterns.

Adjective vs noun form: entrepreneur 'Entrepreneur' is a noun (a person). The adjective form is 'entrepreneurial'. Using the noun as an adjective sounds non-native in formal contexts.

ALT 'entrepreneurial things' or 'business ventures'

EX She has an entrepreneurial spirit.

EX He's an entrepreneur.

TRAP English creates adjectives from nouns by adding -ial, -al, or -ic.

pull the rug out from under

Register: Casual/Standard

Support is suddenly removed. Failure follows very quickly.

MEANING Betray by removing support.

scratch the surface

Register: Standard

Only partial understanding so far. Much remains hidden underneath.

MEANING Barely begin understanding.

comfort food

Register: Casual

Familiar and easy content. Comfort chosen over challenge.

MEANING Emotional comfort material.

game changer

Register: Casual/Standard

Changes the rules completely. Often hype or sarcasm.

MEANING Rule-changing development.

catch-22

Register: Standard

Contradictory rules block success. No good solution exists.

MEANING Unsolvable trapped situation.

the writing on the wall

Register: Standard

Warning signs clearly visible. Decline or failure ahead.

MEANING Obvious coming failure.

Self-correction as a learning signal

- You reached for a phrasal verb, got close, and the correction stuck.
- The 'sorry' is social smoothing, not linguistic apology.
- Particle selection is still imprecise, which is normal at B2.

Register flexibility

- Switches registers very naturally within the same conversation.
- Business topics trigger professional precision automatically.
- Personal tone remains casual and natural.

The 'quarter of' comparative drill with real cost comparisons from tech news.

Read one tech news article and highlight 5 phrasal verbs with their situations.

Phrasal verb particle sorting using real business situations, not lists.

Audit business comparisons to ensure 'of' and 'than' are not mixed.

Total items: 7

Read the tech news article and highlight phrasal verbs.

Send fillable PDF to Francisco.

Practice the 'quarter of' comparative structure with real cost data.

Build more phrasal verb particle exercises using real business scenarios.

Continue reading PDFs Aaron sends.

Prepare dashboard-related discussion for next session.

Send a tech news article with embedded phrasal verbs.